

Sound Doctor Videos for patients and Carers - Dementia

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• What is dementia?</li><li>• Different types of dementia</li><li>• Can I reduce the risk?</li><li>• Early symptoms of dementia</li><li>• Memory loss</li><li>• Language and communication problems</li><li>• The progression of dementia</li><li>• Taking the first step</li><li>• Discovering you have dementia</li><li>• Now you've been diagnosed</li><li>• The benefits of diagnosis</li><li>• Where can I turn to for help?</li><li>• Becoming a carer</li><li>• Looking after yourself as a carer</li><li>• Looking after yourself as a carer – Barbara's story</li></ul> | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Living well with dementia</li><li>• Understanding the person</li><li>• Don't hide away</li><li>• Medicines that may help</li><li>• Keeping active</li><li>• Communicating with someone who has dementia</li><li>• Keeping your independence</li><li>• Driving</li><li>• Benefits and allowances</li><li>• Dealing with incontinence</li><li>• Getting your finances in order</li><li>• Powers of Attorney</li><li>• Thinking about residential care</li><li>• Choosing a care home</li><li>• Coping with changing behaviour</li><li>• Making your home dementia friendly</li></ul> |
|--|--|

What is dementia?

Different types of dementia

Can I reduce the risk?

Early symptoms of dementia

Memory loss

Language and communication problems

The progression of dementia

Taking the first step

Discovering you have dementia

Now you've been diagnosed

The benefits of diagnosis

Where can I turn to for help?

Becoming a carer

Looking after yourself as a carer

Looking after yourself as a carer – Barbara's story

Living well with dementia

Understanding the person

Don't hide away

Medicines that may help

Keeping active

Communicating with someone who has dementia

Keeping your independence

Driving

Benefits and allowances

Dealing with incontinence

Getting your finances in order

Powers of Attorney

Thinking about residential care

Choosing a care home

Coping with changing behaviour

Making your home dementia friendly